Central Europe is under the influence of strong high pressure at the turn of the month and well beyond. The high-pressure system covers large parts of Europe and deflects Atlantic fronts in a wide arc around us, ensuring that we continue to enjoy very stable and beautiful autumn weather for an extended period. This means that we are guaranteed bright sunshine throughout the day under a mostly cloudless sky. Additionally, due to the accumulation of unseasonably warm air in the high-pressure system, above-average temperatures will persist. The frost line is around 4000 meters above sea level until the weekend.
